

Suppose a cell's facilitated diffusion compounds malfunction. How might that affect the cell's energy use, and why do you think so?

1. What will happen?

The cell might use more energy.

2. What is your evidence - based on what we've done in class?

Fac. diffusion doesn't normally use energy - if they malfunction, part of the change might be to use more energy.