

What Trying Looks Like

Mr. Bregar's Classes

When you try your best to succeed in one of my classes, here is what I will see:

1. You show up for class – on time! – every day.
2. You make productive use of class time when it is available to work on assignments.
3. Every assignment is turned in on time and done to the best of your ability.
4. You contribute to a positive classroom environment and are not disruptive to other students.
5. You are prepared to learn and work every day.
6. You listen and take notes when appropriate.

If you can consistently demonstrate the behaviors described in #1-6, you will be guaranteed at LEAST a C in Field Biology, Physical Science and Technology, Recording / Engineering / Mixing, and Biology

7. You participate in class discussions either by listening carefully or by contributing relevant questions or comments.
8. When you have questions about course material or assignments, you discuss these questions with Mr. Bregar.
9. You take advantage of any extra credit or optional activities to increase your understanding.
10. You are respectful of everyone in the class (including yourself!).

If you can consistently demonstrate the behaviors described in #1-10, you will almost certainly earn at least a B in all of the classes I teach.
